

Marcin Strojwas received his B.S. and MEng. in Electrical Engineering and Computer Science from MIT. He received his Ph.D. from the Harvard Business School / Harvard University Doctoral Program in Information Technology and Management where his thesis topic was “Vertical Integration In The Semiconductor Industry”. His publications include the Harvard Business School Case Study: "Taiwan Semiconductor Manufacturing Company: Building a Platform for Distributed Innovation” (Co-authored with Prof. Marco Iansiti) and RAND Journal of economics article “The Design of Patent Pools: The Determinants of Licensing Rules” (Co-authored with Prof. Josh Lerner and Nobel Prize Winner Jean Tirole). Dr. Strojwas has been with PDF Solutions for 15 years.

During that time he has led DFM projects spanning all major foundries and several major fabless. He currently serves as General Manager of DFM Solutions. Previously, he held managerial roles in business development, strategy, and marketing.